

In the distance...

In the summer of 1933, the Prussian State built the concentration camp Esterwegen on the site of today's memorial to accommodate political prisoners.

From 1934 to 1936, it was under the control of the SS „Concentration Camps Inspectorate“. In 1936, the camp was dissolved; the successor camp was the Sachsenhausen concentration camp near Berlin. Doubtless, one of the best-known inmates in Esterwegen was the 1935 Nobel Peace Prize winner Carl von Ossietzky.

From 1937 to 1945, Camp Esterwegen housed convicts of the criminal justice system of the „Reich“. During the Second World War, mainly soldiers sentenced by Wehrmacht courts were imprisoned here and in other Emsland camps. In 1943/44, resistance fighters from various Western European countries, so-called „Nacht und Nebel“ (Night and Fog) prisoners, were incarcerated in one part of the camp („Camp South“).

History...

Summer 1933
Establishment of the Esterwegen concentration camp by the Prussian State, set-up as a double camp for 1,000 prisoners each.

1934
Consolidation of the camp by the SS. Takeover of the two sub-camps: construction of the 2.50 m high outer wall with two watchtowers and a high entrance gate. Inner gate with watchtower for a machine gun post at the entrance to the prisoner camp. Construction of leisure facilities for the SS.

Autumn 1936
Dissolution of the Esterwegen concentration camp; transfer to Orlanenburg (Sachsenhausen concentration camp).

Ab 1937
Takeover by the justice administration as a convict camp. Enlargement of the prisoner camp, conversion of the guard camp, construction of two further watchtowers and a new inner gate, planting of trees on both sides of the camp road.

May 1943 – April 1944
 Separation of „Camp South“ for a total of 2,700 „Nacht und Nebel“ prisoners. These were resistance fighters, especially from Belgium.

May 1945 – July 1947
Internment camp of the British occupying forces; subsequently department of the „Emsland Penal Institutions“ until 1951.

1953 – 1959
Transit camp for refugees. Dismantling of all buildings of the former camp.

1963 – 2001
Bundeswehr depot with 19 barracks erected on both sides of the camp road. A strip of American red oaks was planted behind them (1970s).

2009 – 2011
 Establishment of the Esterwegen Memorial: Corten steel panels as „translation“ of the wall, watchtowers and gates. Lava gravel to cover the prisoner camp. Tree islands to mark the barrack locations.

The Emsland Camps...

Between 1933 and 1945, the Nazi state ran 15 prisoner camps in Emsland and the county of Bentheim.

As part of the SS, justice and Wehrmacht system, all camps were places of terror. A total of up to 10,000 concentration camp inmates and 70,000 convicts suffered in the Emsland camps. During the war, they housed far more than 100,000 POWs. Until the end of the war, the prisoners and convicts had to perform heavy forced labor in moorland cultivation, in the peat and armaments industry, in agriculture and also in clearing air raid damages.

More than 20,000 people, most of them Soviet prisoners of war, starved to death, died of exhaustion and disease, following physical abuse or were „shot dead while on the run“.

In the post-war period, the camps provided shelter for former forced laborers, later also for refugees and displaced persons. Today, prisons, housing estates and farmland can be found on the sites of the former Emsland camps.

„Concentration camp prisoners upon their release in 1933“ (Federal Archives)

ESTERWEGEN MEMORIAL |
 GEDENKSTÄTTE ESTERWEGEN
 Hinterm Busch 1
 26897 Esterwegen, Germany

Free admission

fon 0049 (59 55) 98 89 50
 web www.gedenkstaette-esterwegen.de mail info@gedenkstaette-esterwegen.de facebook.com/GedenkstaetteEsterwegen instagram.com/ged_esterwegen
 youtube.com/@gedenkstaetteesterwegen

Opening hours
From April to October
 Tuesday to Sunday 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.
From November to March
 Tuesday to Sunday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Public guided tours
February to December
 on the first Sunday of the month
 at 11 a.m. & 3 p.m.

Open on Easter Monday & Whit Monday
 Closed from 15 December to 15 January

„We must never forget.“

Here and now...

The Memorial is a European site of remembrance for all 15 Emsland camps and their victims.

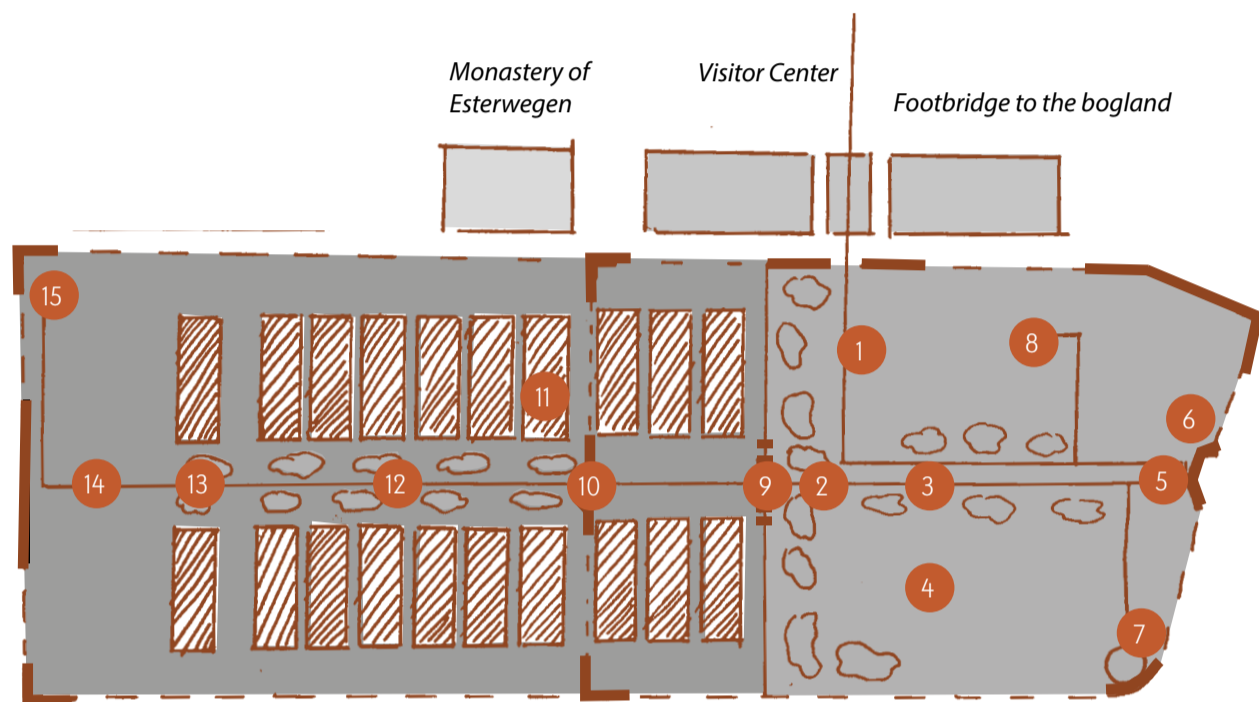

It points the way to a future without dictatorship, violent politics and terror, without nationalism and racism. It calls for a commitment to human rights, the rule of law and democracy.

In the former Bundeswehr depot halls from the 1970s, the visitor center now houses the exhibitions, seminar rooms, a library, the archives and the cafeteria.

Map...

- 1 Fountain in the guard camp
- 2 Camp road
- 3 Stairway to an NS memorial
- 4 Buried NS memorial stone
- 5 Main gate of the camp
- 6 Carl v. Ossietzky memorial stones
- 7 Leisure area in the guard camp with the so-called „Feldherrenhügel“
- 8 Site of the former „communal hall“ of the prison camp guards
- 9 Inner gate of the convict camp and of „Camp South“ of the „Nacht und Nebel“ prisoners
- 10 Gate to the protective custody camp of the concentration camp 1934-1936
- 11 Place of learning “barrack”
- 12 Prisoner barracks on both sides of the camp road, which served as a roll call area and place of public abuse
- 13 Prisoners’ kitchen and bathroom
- 14 Emergency gate and memorial wall
- 15 Watchtower in the north-west corner

Exhibitions...

The principal exhibition documents the history of the Emsland camps from 1933 to 1945.

It chronologically provides a context for the events within the history of the “Third Reich”, including the regional aspects. The focus is on the experiences of the prisoners and convicts working in the moorland and on how they lived and suffered in the camps. The side exhibition covers the postwar history of the Emsland camps.

The Camp grounds...

Walking the grounds, the traces of the former camp can be seen.

Those parts of the camp topography that are no longer visible and which stand for violence and threat, have been translated into a modern design language (steel elements). “Packages of trees” visualize the locations of the former barracks. Covered with lava gravel, the former prison area suggests a reddish-brown moor landscape. A steel footbridge links the historical site of the Esterwegen Camp with a renaturalized bog close-by, which symbolizes the place of heavy forced labor.

Activities...

- » Readings and lectures
- » special exhibitions
- » Project days, seminars and teacher training
- » Internships for students of secondary and higher education; positions for a voluntary social year
- » Use of the memorial library
- » Support for relatives and information on prisoners and convicts
- » Guided tours by appointment (a participation fee is charged)

Imprint:

Idea: Vocational school for design assistants; Berufsschulzentrum am Westerberg, Osnabrück;

Flyer: Frida Thöle; Logo: Pia Bovenschulte

Picture credits:

Federal Archives Berlin, Museum of Cultural History Osnabrück, Archive of the Memorial of Esterwegen